

CITROËN-STYLE AT THE ACE

90 years of the French firm were celebrated in true style at the Ace Café, London on Saturday October 3, and we were there.

This was the most exciting gathering of Citroëns that the capital had ever seen with some exceedingly rare models rubbing shoulders with the current production line-up. Celebrities such as C6-owning Alexei Sayle and Picasso-owning Fiona Bruce came along to join the fun while TV's Mike Brewer and motoring journalist John Simister judged a competition to find the favourite Citroën from each decade of production.

Later in the evening a parade of 100 Citroën models took part in a special cruise around London. Organised by the Citroën Car Club (CCC), the commemorative run, one of several taking place simultaneously across European capital cities, took drivers on a route around London, automotive and Citroën landmarks.

Members of The Deux Chevaux Club of Great Britain, the CCC and the Traction Owner's Club all came together to enjoy this special gathering – don't forget that these clubs promise a display of rare Citroën prototypes at the NEC Classic Car Show next month.

Citroëns from across the company's history gathered at the Ace Café

A rare Traction Avant roadster poses next to an even rarer fixed-head coupé, the latter owned by Barry Annells of Bourne. Both were actually built in the British Slough factory

This amazing gathering attracted people from all over the UK